

LORNE HOUSE

CASTLETOWN
ISLE OF MAN

A unique residence combining history, character and location

Lorne House stands as one of the most historically significant and architecturally distinguished private residences in the Isle of Man. This is a home of genuine rarity – a grand Georgian estate offering seclusion, scale, and heritage in equal measure, set within the heart of Castletown, the island's ancient former capital.

History & Provenance

Emerging in its present form by 1828, Lorne House carries a lineage few island properties can match. For a period, it served as the official residence of the island's Lieutenant Governor, and it remains a registered building of the Isle of Man – recognised for its architectural and cultural importance. Named after a district of Scotland, the house was described in accounts of its time as a magnificent building, and it is no less impressive today.

The House

The principal residence offers seven bedrooms, five of which benefit from en-suite facilities, together with seven reception rooms of generous proportion. The accommodation flows naturally between formal and informal spaces, equally suited to grand entertaining and comfortable everyday living. The interiors have been comprehensively and sensitively updated, combining period character with a refined contemporary sensibility that respects the home's considerable heritage.

The Grounds

Extending to approximately 6.5 acres, the fully enclosed walled grounds deliver a level of privacy that is quite exceptional for a property so centrally located. Mature orchards, paddocks, and beautifully restored walled gardens create a succession of distinct outdoor spaces, while the outlook towards Castle Rushen – one of the best-preserved medieval castles in the British Isles – lends the setting an atmosphere that simply cannot be replicated..

Location

Castletown offers an enviable quality of life, with a sandy beach, harbour, restaurants, an acclaimed links golf course, private school, and the Isle of Man Airport all within close reach. Lorne House represents a once-in-a-generation opportunity to acquire a home of true national significance.

Castletown is uniquely positioned as the Isle of Man's principal gateway town. With the airport on its doorstep, direct air links to major UK cities, regular ferry services to England and Ireland, and strong local transport connections, it is one of the most accessible locations in the British Isles for those seeking a balance between connectivity, lifestyle, and business opportunity.

Air Connections

Castletown is located immediately adjacent to the Isle of Man's only commercial airport, Ronaldsway Airport (IOM), which sits less than two miles from the town centre. The airport has excellent private jet and helicopter facilities, as well as providing regular scheduled services to major UK and Irish destinations including London Heathrow, London City, Manchester, Liverpool, Birmingham, Bristol, Edinburgh, Dublin and Belfast, with flight times from many UK cities taking as little as 30–60 minutes.

For London-based travellers, the availability of Heathrow and London City services makes same-day business travel entirely practical.

Ferry Connections

The Isle of Man is also served by regular ferry services operated by the Steam Packet Company. Sailings connect the Island with Liverpool and Heysham year-round, with seasonal services to Dublin and Belfast. Ferries arrive at Douglas, approximately 20 minutes by road from Castletown.

Road & Public Transport

Castletown benefits from excellent public transport links. Frequent bus services connect the airport, Castletown, Douglas, and the southern towns of Port Erin and Port St Mary, with services operating throughout the day. Douglas, the island's capital and main business centre, is approximately 20–30 minutes away by car or bus.

The town is also served by the historic Isle of Man Steam Railway, providing a unique connection to Douglas and the south of the island during the operating season. Ronaldsway Halt railway station is within walking distance of the airport.

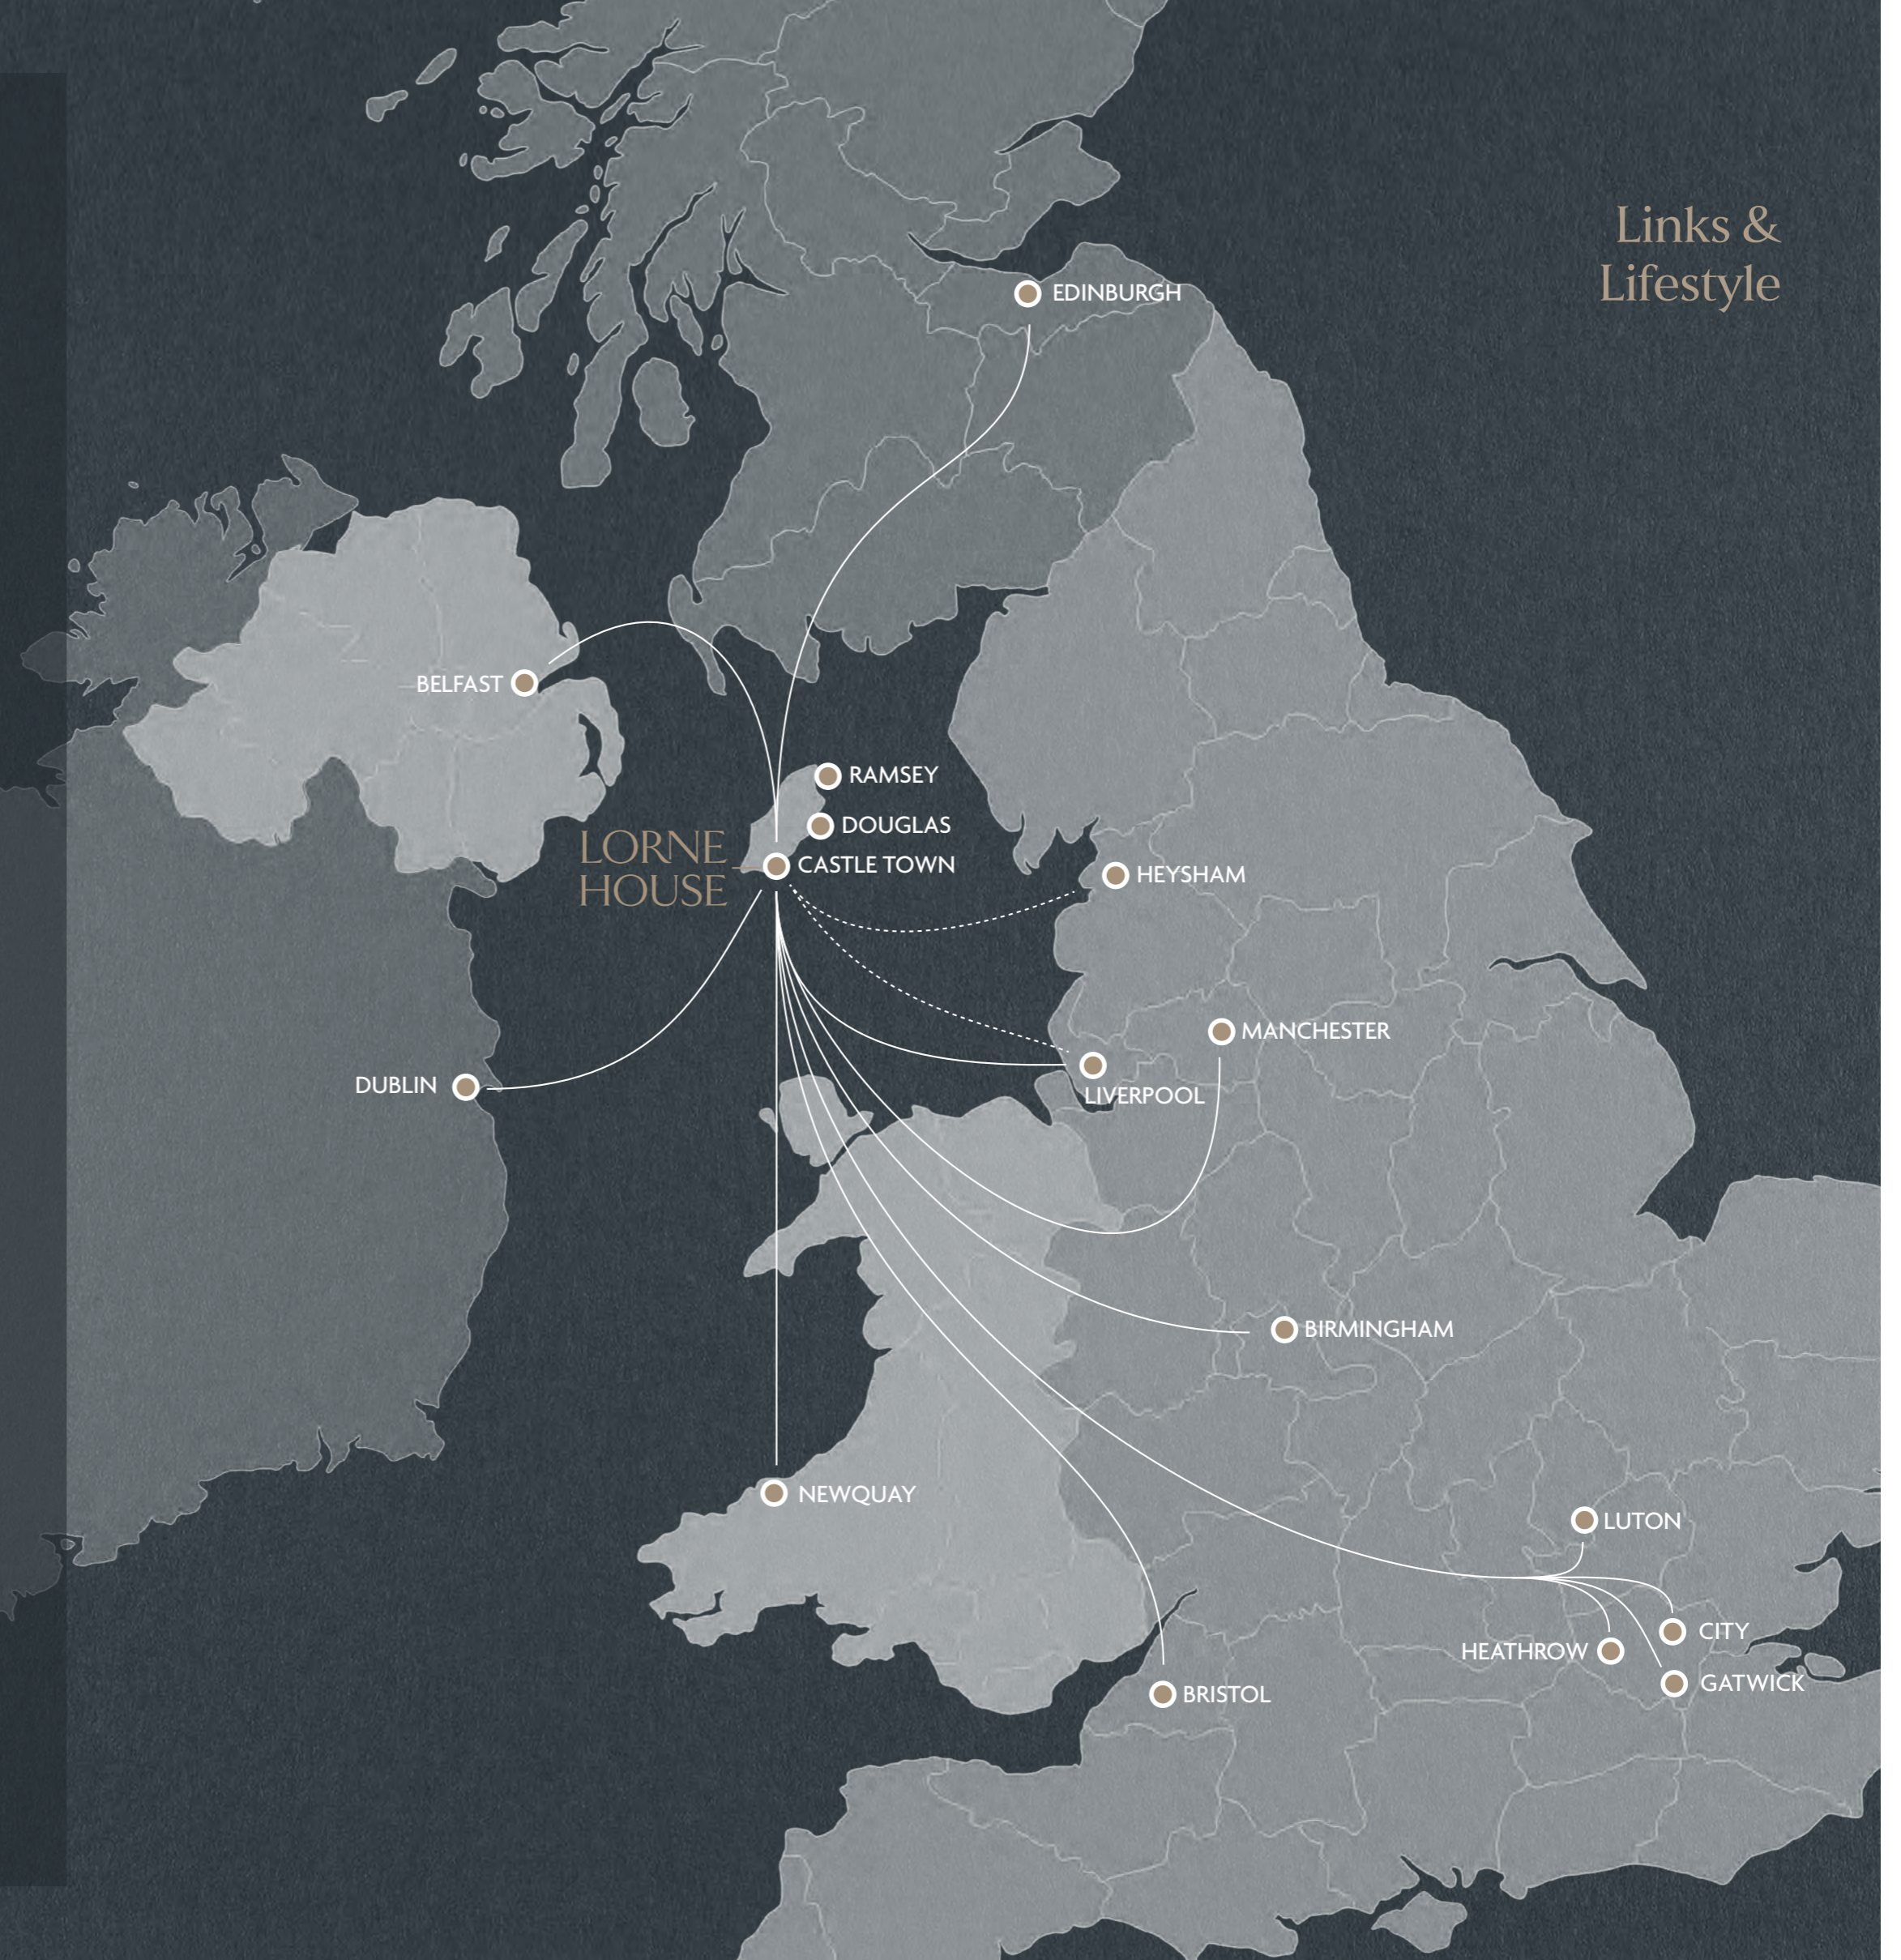

Business & Lifestyle Appeal

For professionals relocating from the UK, Castletown combines exceptional connectivity with a high quality of life. Residents can be at the airport within minutes, reach London in little more than an hour's flying time, and enjoy easy access to the island's finance, technology, and professional services sectors. The town offers a historic setting, attractive coastal environment, excellent schools, and convenient access to Douglas while avoiding the congestion of larger urban centres.
