Anurika (Rika) Onyenso
ECHOFORM

Dear Anurika:

Thank you for the invitation to Stories That Echo and for the opportunity to recognize the innovative work being done by ECHOFORM and the young people participating in this year's Artivism Cohort.

While I am unable to attend in person, I want to extend my sincere congratulations to everyone involved in making this showcase possible. Your willingness to share your experiences, perspectives and creativity helps strengthen our communities and enriches the conversations that shape our future.

Alberta's young people are not only the leaders of tomorrow but also important contributors today. By using storytelling, art and civic engagement to express your ideas and explore issues that matter to you, you are demonstrating the power of constructive dialogue, creativity and community involvement.

I encourage each of you to continue using your voices in positive and productive ways. The stories you tell, the questions you ask and the connections you build can inspire others and help create meaningful change. Your creativity, passion and commitment to your communities are valuable assets that will serve you well in the years ahead.

Thank you for sharing your talents and perspectives. I wish you a successful showcase and continued success in all your future endeavours.

Sincerely,

Rick Wilson
