

EXECUTIVE BRIEFING

LEADERSHIP UNDER PRESSURE

FIVE QUESTIONS EVERY SENIOR LEADER SHOULD BE ASKING

A practical resource for leaders navigating pressure, transition, communication challenges, and organizational complexity.

LEADERSHIP IS RARELY TESTED WHEN EVERYTHING IS GOING WELL

It is tested during difficult conversations, important decisions, organizational change, and moments of uncertainty.

This executive briefing is designed to help senior leaders pause, think clearly, and respond more intentionally when the stakes are high.

Why This Matters

When pressure increases, leaders often move faster. They react. They narrow their perspective. They rely on familiar patterns.

But the moments that matter most require stronger judgment, clearer communication, and more intentional leadership.

The questions in this briefing are designed to help leaders slow down enough to lead more effectively.

FIVE QUESTIONS EVERY SENIOR LEADER SHOULD BE ASKING

1. What is the real issue beneath the immediate pressure?

The visible problem is not always the leadership issue.

Before responding, ask whether the situation reflects a deeper challenge involving communication, trust, accountability, expectations, or alignment.

2. What assumptions am I making?

Pressure often makes leaders more certain than they should be.

Strong judgment requires separating facts from interpretations and staying curious before drawing conclusions.

3. How might others be experiencing this moment?

Leadership is not only about what you intend.

It is also about how your decisions, communication, and behavior are experienced by others.

4. What conversation needs to happen?

Many leadership challenges continue because the necessary conversation has been delayed.

Clarity, accountability, and trust often depend on a leader's willingness to address the right issue directly and respectfully.

5. What response would reflect the leader I want to be?

Pressure reveals leadership patterns.

Before acting, consider whether your response will build trust, strengthen judgment, and support the outcome you want to create.

REFLECTION

The goal is not to remove pressure from leadership.

The goal is to lead with greater clarity, judgment, and intention when pressure increases.

The next time you face a difficult decision, conversation, or leadership moment, pause and ask:

What would stronger leadership look like here?

RELATED PERSPECTIVES

To explore these ideas further, begin with:

→ Executive Judgment: The Leadership Skill Nobody Talks About

→ The Hidden Cost of Delayed Conversations

→ What High-Performing Leadership Teams Do Differently

Available in the Insights section at www.remmcoaching.com

ABOUT REMM COACHING

REMM Coaching works with senior leaders and organizations navigating pressure, transition, communication challenges, and organizational complexity.

Through executive coaching, leadership advisory, and team development, I help leaders think more clearly, communicate more effectively, exercise stronger judgment, and lead more intentionally when the stakes are highest.

Every engagement begins with a confidential conversation to understand your goals, leadership challenges, and desired outcomes.

SCHEDULE A
CONFIDENTIAL CONVERSATION

REMM
EXECUTIVE COACHING

Executive Coaching for Leaders Operating Under Pressure

WEST PALM BEACH, FL
WWW.REMMCOACHING.COM
917-327-5060