

River and Jayden Grow and Learn Together

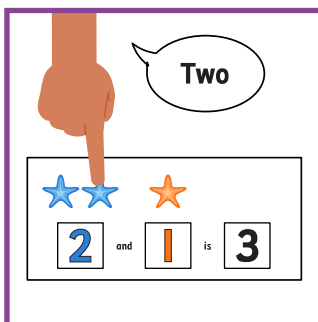

Friends celebrate their strengths together and encourage each other to learn new things. Today, River and Jayden are going to share their strengths and the things they're still practicing.

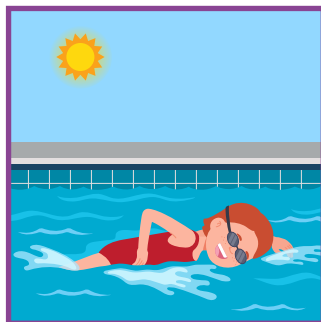

River is good at drawing pictures. River's colorful art makes everyone smile! "Drawing is easy for me," River says.

What are you really good at?

math

swimming

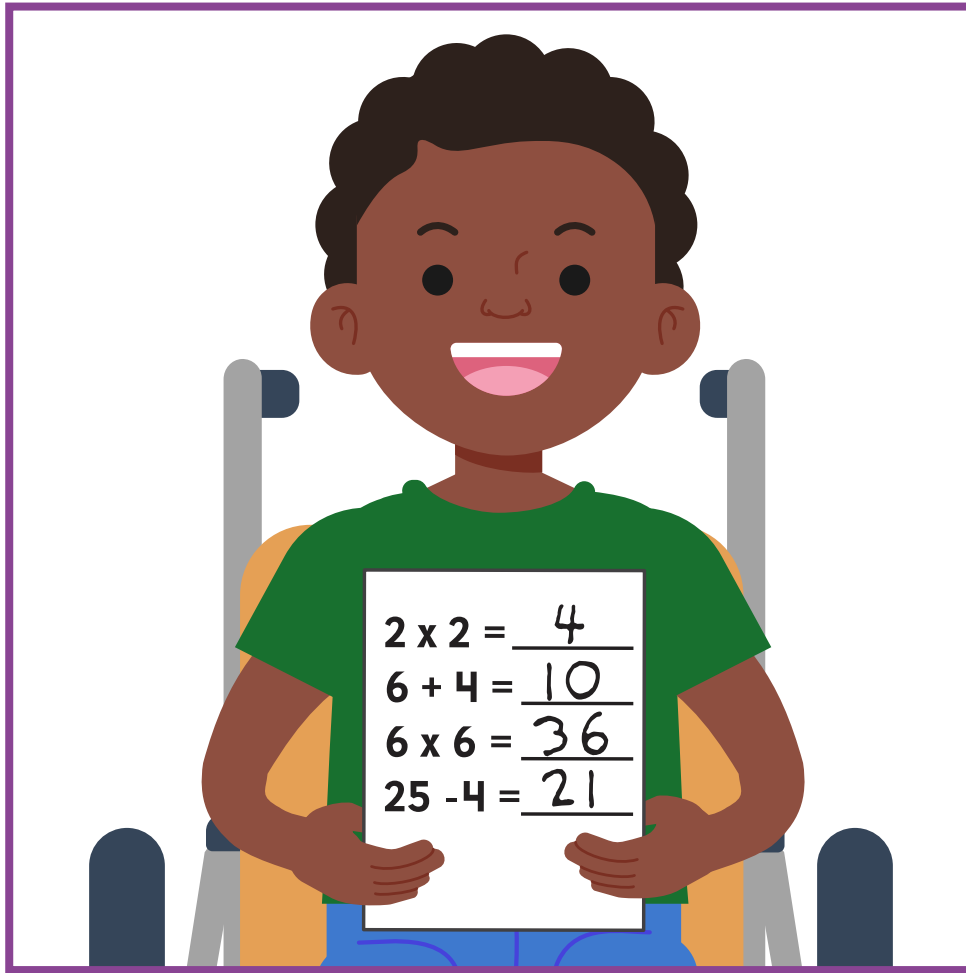

art

something else

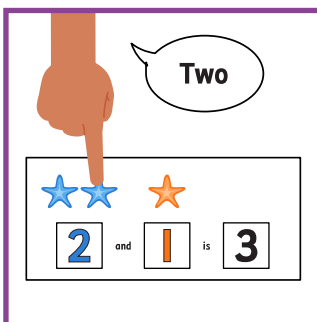

Jayden can solve math problems quickly. Numbers are fun and easy for him! “I love helping my friends with counting,” Jayden says proudly.

What do you like helping others with?

math

building with blocks

holding the door

something else

River wants to learn how to ride a bike, but it's hard. "This is something I need more practice with," River says.

What's something new you're learning?

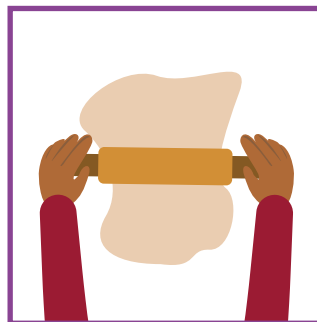

reading

riding a bike

baking

something else

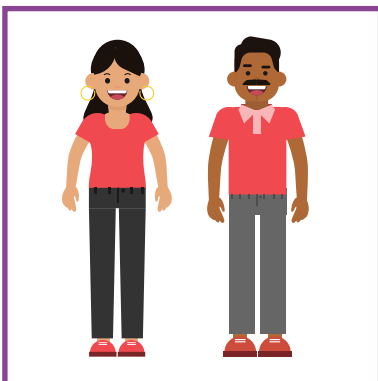

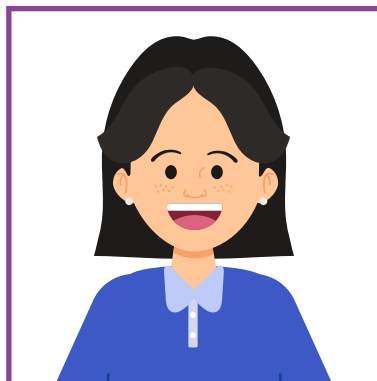

Jayden is having trouble tying his shoes. “It’s OK to ask for help,” River tells Jayden.

Who helps you learn new things?

my family

my teacher

someone else

River practices riding a bike every day. Sometimes River falls, but River keeps trying. “I’m getting better!” River says happily.

What do you practice so you can get better at it?

art

sports

music

something else

With some practice, Jayden finally ties his shoes by himself! “I did it!” he cheers. River gives him a high five.

Let’s celebrate! Have you learned to do something new recently?

yes

no

River and Jayden know that everyone has different strengths. Some things are easy for us, and some things need practice—that's OK!

Does practicing new things feel hard or easy to you?

hard

easy

River and Jayden love learning new things together. When something is hard, they help each other and keep trying.

Do you like learning by yourself or with friends?

by myself

with friends

