Ensure Readiness for Probability Disclosure Verification

Probability disclosure is the #1 enforcement target of the Korean regulator (GRAC).

Why It Matters

- Regulator Focus: Probability Disclosure is GRAC's primary enforcement target, necessitating Mandatory Domestic Agent designation for foreign developers.
- Regulator Oversight: Continuous GRAC monitoring strictly scrutinizes how and where probability information is presented.
- Sanctions Risk: Non-compliance risks immediate administrative orders, heavy fines, or criminal referral

The Operation Challenge

- Ambiguous Scope: Disclosure clearly covers paid Gacha/Lootboxes, however, the mandate may also include enhancement/synthesis items and dungeon passes.
- Strict Disclosure Rules: Posting probability on the purchase screen is mandatory; if difficult, a pre-approved alternative posting method must be used.
- Ad Compliance: All promotional materials and ad asset must display notice indicating the inclusion of probabilistic items.

Decoding the Domestic Agent Mandate with FAQ

Q: Who must appoint an Agent?
A: Overseas game providers who exceed specific annual thresholds: Yearly Installs in Korea > 365,000 OR Annual Global Revenue > 1 Trillion KRW. Should you be uncertain about your eligibility status, please contact us for an official verification.

Q: What is Domestic Agent's core role?
A: The Agent acts as the official legal liaison, managing all regulatory communications and filings to ensure continuous compliance, centering on Probabilistic Item Disclosure as the key enforcement priority.

Q: When is the next renewal?
A: The current designation is effective until October 22, 2026.
Eligibility for the term starting October 23, 2026, will be determined based on the developer's 2025 year's performance.

Q: Will developers be notified if eligibility criteria are no longer met?
A: No. The regulatory body currently does NOT have plans to notify providers who fall below the threshold.
This necessitates proactive monitoring to avoid unnecessary contract extension.

Q: Is full Korean translation of the T&C required for GRAC compliance monitoring?
A: No. Based on recent confirmation from GRAC, your Terms of Service (T&C) does NOT need full Korean translation for their regular monitoring. English T&C is acceptable, provided the Domestic Agent's information is clearly included in Korean.

Q: What is TheGameAgent's Strategic Value?
A: We align our counsel with the regulator's monitoring and enforcement priorities to propose strategic, efficient, and highly effective compliance solutions.
