

EXECUTIVE ERP CASE STUDY

THE CHALLENGE: The director of a two-billion-dollar medical manufacturing company was vacationing with a group in Bozeman, Montana. His company held a jet card membership with another provider. The group needed to return to the company's headquarters in Naples, Florida for an important company meeting the following morning.

The aircraft reserved with the jet card membership had a mechanical issue that grounded it for repairs. The provider could arrange a recovery aircraft to take the group back to Naples in the morning, but it would not be in time to make it to the meeting.

THE GROUP NEEDED TO RETURN TO THE COMPANY'S HEADQUARTERS IN NAPLES, FLORIDA FOR AN IMPORTANT COMPANY MEETING THE FOLLOWING MORNING.

EXECUTIVE EMERGENCY RESPONSE PROGRAM

THE SOLUTION:

The assistant to the director contacted PJS to request an urgent, on-demand solution. As part of its commitment to provide short response times for all flights, PJS immediately identified the client's logistical needs and began sourcing aircraft options. PJS presented three viable options along with two contingency plans and reassured the client that its flight team would be available 24/7 to monitor the final plan and flight results.

THE RESULT:

PJS delivered the aircraft to the client in Bozeman within 4 hours and had the group departing Bozeman at 10 PM. They arrived back in Naples, Florida on the same business day and addressed the emergency.

As a result, the client's company established a relationship with PJS for its corporate aviation needs.

Private Jet Services Group (PJS) is a corporate aviation consultancy providing mission-critical flight services to a global clientele of corporations, professional and collegiate athletic teams, live entertainment tours, governments, and others who recognize the cost of their transportation is far exceeded by the cost of failure. PJS procures on behalf of those clients both VIP and standard configured airliners, regional aircraft, as well as light, midsize, and large cabin executive jets. PJS acts as agents for its clients in negotiating and facilitating transportation with licensed air carriers. PJS does not own or operate aircraft.
