Workforce Amplified: Rendara Launches Autonomous Robot-as-a-Service (RaaS) Workforce for Every Business

Custom robotic workforce solutions, delivered through one simple subscription.

COSTA MESA, California, October 27, 2026. Rendara today announced its launch with a clear mission: to make robotic autonomous workforces accessible to any sized business. As a newly established brand of Noodoe Group, Rendara makes robotic solutions simple to choose, convenient to deploy, and easy to finance.

The future of work is not a matter of people or robots. Rather, it is people amplified by robotics. Nurses back at the bedside. Housekeepers with guests, not hallways. Care staff with residents, not pushing supply carts. Robots take on the repetitive tasks that drain every shift. Teams get their time back. Standards hold. Service levels rise.

For years, that future felt out of reach. Automation meant big capital budgets, a maze of vendors, and machines that rarely fit the job. Rendara fundamentally changes that equation. The solution fits the operation, not the other way around. Rendara Robot-as-a-Service (RaaS) offering provides what customers expect from a robotics amplified workforce.

“As artificial intelligence rapidly evolves and autonomous systems achieve commercial maturity, physical AI has reached a turning point for real-world deployment.” said Allen Ko, Chairman & CEO of Noodoe Group, “Across industries, soaring demand for a robotic workforce is propelling the world into a new era of productivity. Every operator we meet tells the same story. They have great people, but they are stretched too thin,” said Jennifer Chang, CEO of Rendara. “We built Rendara to change that. Not to replace human workforce, but to amplify human potential.”

Built to fit. Equipped for everything.

No two facilities work the same way. Rendara starts with solving a problem, not selling a machine. Its team studies each site, then designs a solution to match. That might be one robot on one floor or a mixed fleet across a portfolio. As needs grow, the solution grows with them.

Nothing to buy. One partner to call.

A monthly subscription replaces large upfront purchases. Rendara proposes the right robots to deploy and keeps them running through a proprietary RaaS Management Platform, so their customers stay focused on the people they serve. A single partner stays accountable for the results of every robot at every site.

About Rendara
