LLOYD'S Agency
A Lloyd's List Intelligence solution

Application and Examination Process

Who may take the examinations?

The examinations are available exclusively to members of the Lloyd's Agency Network. Candidates must be employed by a Lloyd's Agent at the time they take the examination.

Arranging an examination

Candidates wishing to take an examination locally must first contact the Lloyd's Agency Network at LAN@lloydslistintelligence.com so that suitable examination and invigilation arrangements can be agreed.

Examinations are conducted remotely under Lloyd's approved invigilation procedures. Candidates will be provided with details of the examination platform, identification requirements and any technical requirements in advance of the examination.

The Lloyd's Agency Network does not charge candidates or Agencies for taking an examination. All examinations are currently available in English only.

Certificates

A certificate will be issued to each Lloyd's Agency listing the employees who have successfully passed the relevant examination. Separate certificates will be issued for Claims and Recoveries and Technical Cargo Surveying.

Certificates are issued to the Lloyd's Agency rather than to the individual employees named on them.

When a qualified employee leaves the Agency

If an employee who has passed a Lloyd's Agency examination leaves the Agency, the Lloyd's Agency Network must be informed promptly so that its records can be updated.

Our commitment to training

The Lloyd's Agency Network is committed to supporting the continued training and professional development of Lloyd's Agents. Our aim is to help maintain a knowledgeable, capable and consistently high-quality marine service provider network.

Active engagement with the training and examination programme benefits individual Agencies, their employees, their clients and the Lloyd's Agency Network as a whole. We therefore encourage Agencies to support employees in completing the training relevant to their responsibilities.
