

The founders

Bios and photos as published on flggd.com/about.

Richard Stocks

Co-founder and chief executive

Richard has spent more than 25 years building data and analytics products, mostly in financial services and anti-financial crime. He has worked with more than 300 banks, regulators and fintechs, and has held executive roles at AlertSpeed, SymphonyAI, Quantexa and Pitney Bowes. Products he has led have carried over $100 million in revenue, and he has taken one company through to exit.

He is a Certified Anti-Money Laundering Specialist. He is the son of two police officers.

He spent most of his career building tools for institutions. Flggd is the first thing he has built for the people those institutions are trying to protect.

Jasper Wong

Co-founder and chief technology officer

Jasper has spent more than 30 years building scalable infrastructure, distributed systems and consumer applications. He has built platforms serving more than 40,000 retail locations, contributed to $20 million in revenue, and led engineering teams at inStream and PongSpace. His domain background is in identity and access management.

He holds a B.S. from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and an M.S. from Brown University, both in computer science, with a focus on machine learning and distributed systems.

He leads engineering at Flggd.
