What do you hope to contribute as a mentor?

My goal would be to help someone not lose heart and to be a source of refreshment in a challenging time in his life (Philemon 7, 20). Perhaps I would be able to help meet a pressing need that has a student considering quitting (Titus 3:14). But mostly it would be to help him grow instead of wither spiritually during graduate school.

What special experiences do you have to contribute?

Surviving Grad School with two kids in a Master's Program, and three kids during PhD.

PROFESSIONAL BIO

Dr. Michael Shaub is an experienced professor, mentor, and scholar whose career has spanned accounting, auditing, business ethics, and the development of principled leaders. A former CPA, Michael returned to graduate school to pursue his Ph.D. and went on to spend much of his academic career at major research universities, including Texas A&M University's Mays Business School.

While auditing was his primary teaching specialty, Michael's teaching and research also explored ethics, character, and integrity in professional decision-making. At Texas A&M, he served for nearly a decade as Administrative Director of the Accounting Ph.D. program, supporting student recruitment and helping secure grant funding for doctoral students.

As a mentor, Michael brings academic and professional experience alongside a personal understanding of the challenges of pursuing one's calling, faith, career, and family well.
