

DR. MATTHEW KOSCHMANN

Ph.D.

Matt Koschman is a respected educator, researcher, and thought leader, who is known for his work in leadership, collaboration, and organizational communication, helping communities and institutions navigate complex challenges through meaningful dialogue and collective engagement.

AREAS OF EXPERTISE

Organizational communication, Nonprofit sector

HOBBIES

Skiing, Backpacking, Soccer, Basketball, Dogs, Reading

FUN FACT

Matt was born in Alaska

LIFE VERSE

"Lord I believe, help my unbelief" Mark 9:24

AVAILABILITY

- In-Person : Based in Boulder, CO
- Virtual Nationwide

LINKEDIN

LINK TO PUBLICATIONS

PROFESSIONAL BIO

Dr. Matthew Koschmann is a professor in the Department of Communication at University of Colorado Boulder whose work focuses on leadership, organizational communication, collaboration, and community engagement. His research explores how organizations, institutions, and communities work together to address complex social challenges, particularly within nonprofit and civic sectors.

Dr. Koschmann's scholarship has examined issues including affordable housing, disaster recovery, prisoner reentry, and human trafficking, with a focus on how communication and collaboration can drive long-term impact. He is widely recognized for his interdisciplinary approach to leadership and organizational problem solving, helping organizations and communities strengthen partnerships and create meaningful social impact.

UNIVERSITIES ATTENDED

University of Texas at Austin

Ph.D. Communication studies/ Organizational Communication

University of New Mexico

M.A. Communication studies/ Graduate Minor in Philosophy

University of Madison-Wisconsin

B.B.A. Business Administration/ Marketing

SOME SPEAKING TOPICS

- Organizational communication
- Nonprofit sector