

Invitation from the Disability Dialogue: Parents with an intellectual disability

The Disability Dialogue wants you to come to a talk.

The Disability Dialogue is a group of people who come together to talk about important things for people with disability.

The talk is about parents who have an intellectual disability.

People from the National Advocacy Collective will give the talk.

The National Advocacy Collective is a group of

- Parents with an intellectual disability
- Advocates
- Supporters
- Researchers.

Some of the things they will talk about are

- How changes to the NDIS can affect parents with an intellectual disability.
- What support parents with an intellectual disability need.
- Self-advocacy and peer support for parents with an intellectual disability.
- Research that can help parents with an intellectual disability.

The talk will happen on Wednesday 28 October.

The time of the talk is:

- 1:00pm – 2:30pm in New South Wales, Victoria, ACT and Tasmania
- 12:00pm – 1:30pm in Queensland
- 12.30pm – 2.00pm in South Australia
- 11:30am – 1:00pm in Northern Territory
- 10:00am – 11:30am in Western Australia.

The talk is online on Zoom.

This talk is for:

- Parents with an intellectual disability
- Other people with disability and their families
- Support people
- Service providers
- People who care about people with disability.

Click on this link to register to come to the talk: [registration link]

We will send you an email with the Zoom link for the talk after you register.

We will send you the Zoom link again in another email the day before the talk.

There is a survey you can take after you register.

The survey has questions about what is important for parents with an intellectual disability.

The survey is in Easy Read.

You do not have to do the survey if you do not want to.

If you have any questions about the talk
please email

info@disabilitydialogue.com.au