Managing Partner

AMANDA BLANCK

GET TO KNOW AMANDA

Amanda Blanck, the Managing Partner at Deviate, is the performance coach to top minds in music, sports, and business. Trusted by major brands like the University of Chicago, William Morris Endeavor, and Skanska, she uses her innate ability to cut through to what helps — and what hinders — making her a potent force in people development, strategy, and culture.

Whether Amanda is facilitating the transition of C-suite leadership, aligning senior executives strategically, keynote coaching at a conference, or teaching athletes mental management, her influential edge is the ability to "connects the dots" to form clarity and progress in the face of uncertainty — to elevate strategy and cultures where people can thrive.

> Through our conversations, I have gained confidence and a new appreciation for my abilities and leadership skills.

The intimate relationship she creates with her clients enables confidence to overcome what seems overwhelming. She's coached leaders on how to stand out from the crowd to become an influential member of the leadership team, disrupt industry norms and set new industry standards, and overcome unchecked stress to achieve work-life integration. Together they expand capacity and increase effectiveness in all aspects of their lives.

Amanda graduated from Washington State University with a degree in Communications. She is a Professional Certified Coach and an active community member serving in Leadership Brentwood and Cable. She is the recipient of the 2016 Nashville ATHENA Young Professional Leadership Award and Cable Rising Star Award.

> She asks the important questions. In turn, I was able to start actually solving the problems I was facing. Amanda helped me find my confidence in my process, and I am truly forever changed.
