The Three-Sound Ticket

The lights glow softly in Kernel's magical movie theater. Kernel walks down the aisle in his pink-and-cyan glasses. He has his fluffy cotton candy in one hand and a shiny golden ticket in the other. Dot trots beside him, ears up. "This ticket says Three-Sound Ticket," says Kernel. "I wonder what that means."

The ticket leads to a cozy corner with a low table. Ladyfinger is already there. She waves her tiny hand. This is Ladyfinger's Learning Class, and she is the teacher today. "Look, wonder, try with Ladyfinger!" everyone sings.

Ladyfinger pats a big, soft sound pad. Pat. Then she looks at all of us and holds very still. That means: get your listening ears ready. Today's goal is to listen to taps, count each tap one time, and check our count. "I'm ready for your pattern, Ladyfinger," says Beam.
